

Barbara Hepworth (1903-1975)

Create a necklace with a twist

Dame Barbara Hepworth, Spring, 1966
© Bowness, Hepworth Estate

Let's make a Barbara Hepworth-inspired necklace which we can look through! Hepworth made here sculptures to frame the landscape and to make you look at things differently. What can you see through your necklace?

You will need:

- plasticine or clay
- pen
- tooth pick
- string

What to do:

1 Roll the plasticine into a ball using your hands.

2 Turn the ball into an unusual shape.

3 To make the big hole, slowly push a pen through the plasticine.

4 To make the small hole, use a toothpick and push through the plasticine.

5 Smooth off the edges to make it look nice. Let it dry.

6 Put a piece of string through the smallest hole and tie the other end in a knot.

